Media Studies (MEDIAST)

Courses

MEDIAST 10 Introduction to Media Studies 4 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2017, Fall 2016, Fall 2015
The objective of this class is to enhance students’ knowledge of media’s industrial and cultural functions by introducing them to key perspectives and methods of study that stress a) how media systems have and continue to develop in the United States and across the globe as well as b) how we use and make meaning with media as part of our everyday lived experiences. To consider media’s social, economic, political, and cultural impact, the course will investigate a number of ways of understanding its production, form, reception, and influence, being careful to recognize how these approaches relate to each other and to a wide array of diverse case studies in television, film, recorded music, print, video games, and online.

Rules & Requirements
Credit Restrictions: A deficient grade may be removed by taking Media Studies 10 or Media Studies N10.

MEDIAST 102 Effects of Mass Media 4 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2017, Fall 2016, Fall 2015
This course examines the often contentious history of communication theory concerning media effects. At issue among scholars working within different research traditions are core disagreements about what should be studied (institutions, texts, audiences, technologies), how it should be studied, and even what constitutes an "effect." Empirical and critical/cultural research and theory are examined with an emphasis on the social, political, and historical contexts surrounding them.

MEDIAST 103 Understanding Journalism 4 Units
Terms offered: Spring 2017
In this course, students learn why sound journalism is so important to a healthy, working democracy. Journalism is rapidly changing. The class will give a context to those changes and provide an overview of contemporary journalistic institutions. Students will examine how news is made, who decides what news is, who makes it, who profits by it, and what rules guide how reporters and editors work. Central issues affecting journalism, such as bias and professionalism, will be discussed. The class is not specifically intended for future journalists, but students will learn why pursuing a career in journalism can be so fulfilling and thrilling, as well as becoming better consumers of the news.

MEDIAST 104B The History of Journalism 3 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2017, Fall 2015, Fall 2014
The history of journalism is a broad subject--far broader than can comprehensively be covered in a single course. So necessarily, this course takes an idiosyncratic approach. This course examines how news has been defined, discovered, and communicated from its early modern origins to the present. It will also focus on particular areas of journalism. The class will take a critical look at how wars get reported on, including the current war in Iraq. The class will examine the role of journalists in the rise of the Cold War more than half a century ago. It will also examine the importance of media barons, by studying two highly readable biographies, one of William Randolph Hearst, the other of Katherine Graham. And finally, the class will look at the role journalists played in unseating President Nixon.
