Berkeley Social Welfare educates students for leadership in the field of social welfare and the profession of social work. Since 1944 we have prepared over 11,000 social work professionals and social work scholars for leadership in a range of research, teaching, advanced practice, and management roles. We offer two graduate degrees: the professional Master of Social Welfare (MSW); and the academic Doctor of Philosophy in Social Welfare (PhD).

Master of Social Welfare (MSW)

Berkeley Social Welfare offers a two year, full time program of study leading to the fully accredited Master of Social Welfare (MSW) (http://socialwelfare.berkeley.edu/msw-program) degree. Students are prepared to practice with specialized skills at specific intervention levels and are thoroughly grounded in social science knowledge, social welfare policies, and social service organizations. All MSW students complete a foundation curriculum in generalist social work practice; an advanced curriculum that prepares students for practice in a chosen area of specialization; and a field education curriculum including agency-based field placements and integrative field seminars.

Certificate Programs

Additional special program options include the School Social Work Credential Program (http://socialwelfare.berkeley.edu/pssc); a Social Work with Latinos Certificate (http://socialwelfare.berkeley.edu/SWLC); and Graduate Certificate in Aging (https://socialwelfare.berkeley.edu/Certificate_in_Aging).

Concurrent Degree Programs

Berkeley Social Welfare offers a Concurrent MSW/MPH Degree (https://socialwelfare.berkeley.edu/mswmpwh) with the School of Public Health; and a Concurrent MSW/MPP Degree (https://socialwelfare.berkeley.edu/mswmppp) with the Goldman School of Public Policy.

The PhD in Social Welfare

Berkeley Social Welfare’s doctoral program (http://socialwelfare.berkeley.edu/phd-program) develops scholars who challenge conventional wisdom and make significant contributions to the field of social welfare and the profession of social work through excellent research, teaching, policy development, and administration. Berkeley doctoral students become proficient in research methodology and experts in their area of interest, ultimately demonstrating scholarly competence by publishing a dissertation.

Applying to Graduate Study in Social Welfare

All applicants to graduate study in Social Welfare apply online through the Berkeley Graduate Division’s Graduate Admissions Office. The School of Social Welfare only admits for the fall semester; applicants can apply for fall admission beginning in September prior to the year they wish to attend. For more information on eligibility requirements, instructions on the application process and a link to the online Graduate Application for Admission and Fellowships, please visit Applying for Graduate Admission. (http://grad.berkeley.edu/admissions/apply)

The School of Social Welfare Admissions Office guides potential graduate applicants through the application process via online resources, admissions advising in-person and by phone advising, group presentations and recruitment events. For more information about our programs, application requirements, admission process, or informational sessions and recruitment events, please visit Berkeley Social Welfare Admissions. (http://socialwelfare.berkeley.edu/admissions)

Admission to the MSW Program

To be eligible for admission to the Master of Social Welfare (MSW) Program at Berkeley, applicants must meet all of the following requirements:

1. Possession of a bachelor’s degree or recognized equivalent from an accredited institution.
2. A satisfactory scholastic average, generally a minimum grade-point average of B or better (3.0 on a 4-point scale).
3. Sufficient undergraduate preparation and training for graduate study in social welfare. Applicants for admission to the MSW program must have strong academic preparation in the liberal arts and sciences, including coursework in the social and behavioral sciences.
4. A course in introductory statistics, research methods, or quantitative reasoning. This requirement must be satisfied prior to matriculation if you are offered admission.
5. The equivalent of one full year of paid or voluntary experience related to social welfare or human services. For applicants to the "Strengthening Organizations and Communities" specialization, the recommended minimum experience requirement is two years.
6. For international applicants from a country or political entity where English is not the official language, a satisfactory score on the TOEFL exam or other acceptable equivalent evidence of English language proficiency to do graduate work is required.
7. Applicants to concurrent master’s degree programs (e.g., MSW/MPH; MSW/MPP) and the Combined MSW/PhD Program must meet eligibility requirements for and admissions standards of both programs, including any examination requirements (GRE, etc.) of other programs. The GRE is not required for admission to the MSW-only program.

Admission to the PhD Program

Berkeley Social Welfare prefers applicants who hold a master's degree in social work or social welfare, or have comparable preparation in a closely related field; and who show evidence of intellectual and other qualifications essential to successful doctoral study. Applicants must possess the intellectual qualifications essential to successful performance in the program, and in reviewing applications we seek to determine whether the applicant’s particular objectives can be met in our doctoral program at Berkeley.

To be considered for admission to the Social Welfare PhD Program, all applicants must:

- Satisfy the minimum requirements for admission to graduate study at Berkeley (http://grad.berkeley.edu/admissions/requirements).
- Have a master’s degree in social work or social welfare, or comparable preparation in a closely related field.
- Demonstrate evidence of intellectual and other qualifications essential to successful performance in the doctoral program, including scores on the Graduate Record Examination (GRE), and examples of scholarly written work.

To be granted the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in Social Welfare, students must satisfy all of the following requirements:
1. Complete a course of study in the school and related departments of the University specified by the school, designed to achieve proficiency in the areas of social work theory, social welfare policy and/or administration, history and philosophies of social welfare, and social research methods.
2. Pass qualifying examinations indicating proficiency in the areas mentioned above.
3. Pass an oral examination before a committee appointed in accordance with rules of the Graduate Council.
4. Be admitted to candidacy for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy according to procedures established by the Academic Senate.
5. Complete a dissertation dealing with some problem of significance to the field of social welfare and of such character as to show power to prosecute independent investigation.
6. Spend a minimum of at least two years of graduate study in residence at the University of California, Berkeley.

Unit Requirement

There is no total unit requirement for the PhD degree in Social Welfare, but doctoral students must enroll full-time (12 units/semester, no more than 4 of which may be earned by working as a graduate student researcher or graduate student instructor) until taking and passing the qualifying exam.

Course of Study

Doctoral coursework includes seminars in research methods, statistics, theory, and other related course; along with individual tutorials with members of the faculty.

Required Courses in Social Welfare

All of the following courses must be completed prior to the Qualifying Exam:

Coursework in Statistics & Methods

Social Welfare doctoral students are required to complete at least six courses in statistics and/or methods. At least four courses must be approved statistics courses. The remaining two courses may be either statistics or methods. These courses are intended to deepen a skill set needed for an ongoing program of research. Students work with their PhD faculty advisor to choose these courses from among those approved by the Doctoral Curriculum Committee. Courses must be graduate level courses (200 and above) and may be offered by any department on campus.

Elective in Social Science Theory

Social Welfare doctoral students are required to complete at least one, letter-graded course focused on basic-discipline social science theory, before or during the semester of the Qualifying Exam.

First Year Comprehensive Exam

At the end of their first year in the program, students are required to demonstrate mastery of a broad base of knowledge in social welfare by completing a competency exam based upon knowledge gained in SOC WEL 279 and SOC WEL 289A.

Qualifying Paper

A Qualifying Paper (QP), which serves as a preliminary examination, is due at the end of the second year of the PhD program. Students work with their primary faculty advisor to submit a 1-2 page statement of their proposed Qualifying Paper topic to the PhD Faculty Chair for approval by the October of the second year. The QP is expected to synthesize and critically evaluate an important, broad body of literature about an intellectual question related to a social problem. After the QP is satisfactorily completed, students must (a) declare two fields of expertise on which he or she will be examined by a Qualifying Examination committee, and (b) complete a Dissertation Prospectus. The fields of expertise may relate to the QP, must represent two broad and important bodies of literature related to a social problem(s), and must be approved by the PhD Chair in consultation with the student’s PhD Faculty Advisor. The fields of expertise must be broad (e.g., poverty/inequality and mental health; child development and domestic violence; substance abuse and prevention science).

Dissertation Prospectus

A Dissertation Prospectus must be completed well in advance of taking the Qualifying Examination. The prospectus must summarize the relevant literature, describe the issue or problem to be addressed (with clear study aims), and focus on the plan of research—including the proposed methodology, data sources, and/or analyses to be used, and a tentative timeline for project completion.

Qualifying Examination

The qualifying examination is a three-hour oral exam assessing mastery of the student's chosen fields of study, and written materials submitted for the examination. It is conducted by a committee of five faculty members proposed by the student and approved by the Graduate Division. When passed, this examination marks completion of required course work, mastery of the fields of study, and advancement to candidacy.

Dissertation

Once advanced to candidacy, doctoral students pursue a research agenda that will offer an original contribution to knowledge in the field. The dissertation is the final demonstration of scholarly, research, and professional abilities. Upon final signature of approval by the dissertation committee and submission to the Graduate Division, students are awarded the doctoral degree.

Unit Requirements

The Berkeley MSW requires two years of full-time study that total a minimum of 54 units. At least half of the required 54 units must be from graduate level coursework numbered 200-299. One unit of graduate credit typically requires a minimum of three hours per week of effort on the part of the student, including time spent in class, in the field, and in reading and other preparation.

A total of 25 units must be earned in field education, inclusive of agency-based field placement practicum experience and required integrative field seminars. Students are generally in field placement sites two days a week in the first year, and three days a week in the second year.
Academic Standing
To be awarded the MSW degree a student must have maintained a grade point average not lower than 3.0 (B) in all upper division and graduate academic courses undertaken in graduate residence at the University of California.

Required Coursework

Generalist Practice
All MSW students must successfully complete a foundational generalist practice curriculum, consisting of four required courses taken in the first semester:

- SOC WEL 200 Theories for Multilevel Practice 2
- SOC WEL 220 Introduction to Social Welfare Policy 2
- SOC WEL 240 Historical, Philosophical, and Intellectual Foundations of Social Work 2
- SOC WEL 241 Foundations of Multilevel Practice 3

Diversity-Competent Social Work Practice
All MSW students must complete an approved course in diversity-competent practice, valued at 2 units or higher. See Diversity Courses (p. 4) for more information on courses that satisfy this requirement.

Specialized Practice
All MSW students complete a series of required advanced practice and policy courses, selected according to chosen specialized practice area(s) and any additional special program options.

Social Research Methods and Master's Capstone Requirement
All MSW students must complete two courses in methods of social research:

SOC WEL 282A Seminar in Social Welfare Research 2
SOC WEL 282B Seminar in Social Welfare Research 2

The Berkeley master’s capstone requirement is satisfied by successful completion of SOC WEL 282B.

Electives
MSW students must complete a sufficient number of units in approved, professionally relevant elective course work required to reach the minimum total unit requirement. Since the number of required courses varies according to area of specialized practice, the total number of elective units required in each area will also vary. See Elective Courses (p. 4) for more information on courses that satisfy this requirement.

Field Education Requirements
All MSW students must earn a total of 25 units in field education, inclusive of agency-based field placement practicum experience and required integrative field seminars. Students are generally in field placement sites two days a week in the first year, and three days a week in the second year.

Concurrent Degree in Public Health

Berkeley Social Welfare and the Goldman School of Public Policy (https://gspp.berkeley.edu/academics/concurrent-degree-programs/public-policy-social-welfare) (GPSP) offer a Concurrent Degree program option that blends the substantive focus and professional social work training of the Masters in Social Welfare (MSW) with the rigorous methodological tools and policy breadth of the Masters in Public Policy (MPP). Students seeking a career in social service research, policy, or administration must be knowledgeable about the complexities of service delivery, a perspective supplied by the MSW Field Education and service-oriented course work; skilled in the “big picture” policy analysis based in the rigorous methodological training in economics, statistics, and policy research of the MPP; and able to effectively advocate for their programs and their constituents in the legislature and executive branches.

To complete the MSW/MPP Concurrent Degree program and earn both the MSW and MPP, a student must be admitted to the program and complete 90 units of course work in Social Welfare and Public Health, which includes 23 units related to off-campus field education, over 3 years. One year each is dedicated to foundation curriculum in social welfare and public policy. The third year is a combination of advanced social welfare and public health curriculum that results in a joint Master’s capstone that addresses the knowledge of both fields.

Prospective applicants may reach out to either school for more information about this program.

SOC WEL 200 Theories for Multilevel Practice
2 Units

Terms offered: Fall 2019, Fall 2018, Fall 2017

This course examines the foundations of social work practice theories and strategies for connecting theory and practice. It provides an overview of the impact of the social environment, the impact of the “ecology” of human behavior and the way social institutions and practices provide structure over the life course. Practice implications are explored in terms of assessing client social and psychological needs. The course covers biophysical perspectives, crisis and intervention, cognitive-behavioral theories, systems/ecological frameworks, social psychological theories, social constructionism, humanism and existentialism, critical race and conflict theories, multilevel practice theories, and examination of individual and group differences.

SOC WEL 289A Research Methods and Techniques in Social Welfare 4 Units
Terms offered: Spring 2019, Spring 2018, Spring 2017
This course provides doctoral students a firm foundation in research processes and methods. Topics include problem formulation, use of theory, conceptualization, measurement, causal inference, sampling, and design methods. A core goal is to provide insight into the opportunities and challenges social work researchers face as they apply social science and related theory and methods to real world problems and settings. Course activities will guide students to future coursework in research methodologies and analysis, as well as position paper and dissertation proposal development. Sessions combine a focus on the conceptual and technical aspects of the research process and consider issues across quantitative and qualitative approaches.
