EDUC 39A Freshman/Sophomore Seminar: Applying the Universal Design Paradigm to Enhance Educational Access for All Students 3 Units
Terms offered: Summer 2016 10 Week Session, Summer 1998 10 Week Session, Fall 1997
What is access? In this course, students will refine their definition of educational access and learn about the paradigm of universal design, a set of principles originally developed to ensure that the built environment was accessible to all. Universal design has expanded to apply to learning contexts. Educators, in addition to applying universal design to tangible aspects of the learning environment, are also applying it to intangible elements (curriculum, teaching philosophy and practices, etc.) in order to create barrier-free learning environments that serve diverse student populations. Students will analyze the elements that allow for all students to have fair and equal participation in educational settings.

EDUC 39B Freshman/Sophomore Seminar: Reading the Research University 3 Units
Terms offered: Summer 2014 10 Week Session
How do undergraduates thrive in a research university? This course provides a multi-disciplinary framework for students to interrogate and analyze their educational experiences, including the structures, paradigms, and schooling practices that help shape those experiences. Students will also "read the research university" in order to understand the historical, social, cultural, and economic factors that have created and shaped UC Berkeley. Through this course, students will develop academic frameworks that will inform their learning processes and hone strategies to navigate and thrive in the university.

EDUC 40AC From Macro to Micro: Experiencing Education (In)equality in and beyond Schools 4 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2020, Spring 2018, Spring 2017
The goal of equality has long dominated social and political discourse in the United States. This goal has struggled alongside our nation's professed commitment to diversity – diversity of race, ethnicity, class, language, culture, ability, and religion (among many others). Public schools are arguably the primary arena within which efforts to nurture equality and diversity have been focused and challenged. The schools, and the myriad educational contexts beyond them, play a central role in the organization of inequality. At the same time, they also offer the potential for increased opportunity and equity.

EDUC 52 Understanding Language in Society
3 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2014, Fall 2013, Fall 2012
This course explores how language is influenced by social factors. The topics include dialects and standard English, slang, and the influence of gender, identity, and bilingualism on language use, highlighting the diverse ways in which people use language to communicate with one another. A secondary objective is to teach strategies that are proven effective for successful and efficient reading, writing, learning, and studying. These strategies will be applied to the content of this class and be useful in students' other classes.

Hours & Format
Fall and/or spring: 15 weeks - 3 hours of lecture per week
Summer: 6 weeks - 8 hours of lecture per week

EDUC 52AC Understanding Language in Society
3 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2017, Fall 2016, Fall 2015
This course will explore how speaking, reading and writing are influenced by social and cultural factors. The topics include dialects, Standard English, and slang; the influence of identity on language use; and the dynamic and diverse ways in which people use language to communicate with one another and in their communities. The course will begin by exploring how people communicate within the university, or academic discourse, and how this impacts academic achievement. Thus, a secondary objective is to examine literate strategies and practices of being a student that lead to higher academic achievement.

Hours & Format
Fall and/or spring: 15 weeks - 3 hours of lecture per week
Summer: 6 weeks - 8 hours of lecture per week

EDUC 75 Sport, History, and Cultural Identity
6 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2005, Fall 2004, Summer 2004 10 Week Session
This Summer Study Abroad course examines the ways in which modern sports provide a potential vehicle for social integration and mobility, as well as the construction of a national identity. Sports likewise provide a means of expressing unique cultural affiliations and identities in parallel with, and at times in opposition to, national pastimes and dominant sporting practices. In particular, the course explores Irish and American cultural history, as well as the Irish-American diaspora.

Hours & Format
Summer: 4 weeks - 22.5 hours of lecture per week

EDUC 75AC American Sports, Culture, and Education
3 Units
Terms offered: Spring 2013, Fall 2010, Fall 2009
American sports and athletes have come to signify a complex of variegated meanings that include desire, but also disdain. Through the work of a variety of scholars, researchers, and journalists, this course explores the nature and motives of societal structures and practices (embodied in both institutions and individuals) to illuminate the intersections and reciprocal influences of society and sports. The central framework of this course draws on the notion that the space of sports is defined by highly structured societal practices and consumptions. By critically analyzing a variety of these practices, this course attempts to ground a partial reading of other societal forces in American culture. In particular, the course examines the nuanced intersections of sport, race, ethnicity, social class and gender, highlighting the ways in which American sports provide a potential vehicle for social mobility and integration while simultaneously reproducing existing cultural stereotypes and structures of inequality.

EDUC 112 Reforms in Elementary Education: Psychological and Sociocultural Foundations
3 Units
Terms offered: Spring 2011, Spring 2009, Spring 2008
The course introduces students to relationships between research on cognitive development and reforms in elementary teaching. The syllabus is organized in modules that link research and classroom practice. For example, in a module on children's mathematics, we analyze research on children's strategies for solving math problems and consider how this research has reformed teaching practices. Students complete a project for each module that links research and observations in elementary classrooms through concurrent enrollment in one unit of 197. EDUC 114D Practicum in Early Development and Education, Children Birth to Age 5
4 Units
Terms offered: Spring 2009, Spring 2008
This course will provide students with an understanding of theories and practices in early care and education, specifically focused on children from infancy to age 5. It will also provide an opportunity for students to apply knowledge and reflect upon experiences teaching in a high-quality environment for young children. Course topics will span infant, toddler, and preschool early care and education programs and the age groups for whom such programs are designed. Special attention will be given to 1) curriculum approaches and theories in early care and education programs, 2) educational practices related to culturally, linguistically, and economically diverse student populations, and 3) child observation and classroom organization and practices. In addition, the course will cover changing expectations for children and their teachers, programming for children with special needs, teacher relations with children, parents and other staff, peer relationships, managing challenging child behaviors and identifying quality. Field experience will include working with young children in an infant, toddler or preschool quality program on the UC Berkeley campus or in the surrounding area.

Through the use of lectures, discussions, and multimedia presentations, students will examine three core themes: 1) the purpose of education; 2) how contemporary development policy conceptualizes education; 3) education as a tool for social transformation. To the extent possible, the course draws connections between theory and practical case studies of international education programs, policy statements, and initiatives.

EDUC 150 Advanced Studies in Education 3 Units
Terms offered: Spring 2023, Spring 2022, Fall 2020
This course is an advanced undergraduate seminar in current issues and topics in education. Course will focus on specific issues or research methods in the multidisciplinary field of education. A major research project is required as well as class presentation. Topics change each semester.

EDUC 151 Education, the Student Body, and Disability 3 Units
Terms offered: Prior to 2007
The course will trace the genealogy of educational curriculum reform movements and draw parallels to how students with disabilities have been excluded from physical, social, and sports opportunities within educational spaces historically. Particular focus will be placed on the student body at the intersection of sport and school, analyzing the historical and controversial relationship between athletics and American educational institutions. A critical component of the course requires students to participate in an engaged scholarship experience with our local non-profit partners. Students will have the opportunity to reflect on readings and engaged scholarship experiences through regular course assignments.

EDUC W153 Research in Education: Studying Educational Inequality and Possibility 4 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2023, Summer 2023 First 6 Week Session, Fall 2022
The goal of the Research in Education is to introduce students to educational research and the methods and frameworks used to examine key educational topics related to educational inequality and educational possibility. Students also will develop robust understandings of relevant theories and methods by engaging with research focused around the set of core topics. In this way, students will become ‘re-searchers’ of enduring educational issues.

EDUC 200D Psychosocial Development: Identity, Culture, and Education 3 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2023, Fall 2021, Fall 2020
This course is a doctoral seminar in developmental psychology, with a broad focus on psychosocial development and its impact on children in educational contexts. The course begins with a discussion of Erikson's psychosocial theory and the sociocultural perspectives of Vygotsky and other theorists. We then review some of the major psychosocial variables related to educational achievement, including competence, motivation, self-concept, self-efficacy, self-regulation, and volition. We touch briefly on moral development and values as psychosocial factors affecting correlates. We examine (a) how social and personal identity factors are used to explain underachievement (e.g., cultural ecological theory and stereotype threat), (b) the role of identity in different cultural groups, (c) the impact of these factors on teacher and student behavior, and (d) the role that identity plays in helping students develop a sense of future.

EDUC 215 Socialization Processes Within the Family 3 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2022, Fall 2020, Fall 2019
This course provides an overview of theoretical perspectives on family socialization. We review the literature on parental beliefs and child-rearing practices and study how families affect children's social development. We also examine families in the context of culture and social class. The course concludes by focusing on the relationship between families and schools. Course requirements: class participation, three short papers, reaction notebook.

EDUC 217 Methods in Educational and Psychological Research 3 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2023, Spring 2023, Spring 2022
This course introduces students to the process of evaluating and conducting educational research. Students learn to become critical users of research by reading and evaluating published studies and by practicing formulating problem statements and research questions germane to their research topic of interest. Students learn the basic methods of qualitative and quantitative research and how to engage in applied research by proposing and discussing small-scale studies that can be carried out in their professional settings. The course provides students opportunities to practice crafting, critiquing and revising research questions and developing rigorous but practical methodologies.

EDUC 220 History and Social Studies Methods: Secondary 3 Units
This class aims to familiarize pre-service teachers with, and enable them to practice and reflect upon methods through which foster high school students' engagement with and understanding of history and studies of social life. At the same time, it aims to deepen pre-service teachers' understanding of the range of ways scholars have conceptualized the US history, world history, economics, and civics.

EDUC 220A History and Social Studies Methods: Secondary 3 Units
Terms offered: Spring 2023, Spring 2022, Spring 2021
This class is the second in the two-course series that is grounded in a critical understanding of California's 2016 History-Social Science Framework with the goal of articulating a history-social science pedagogy that humanizes and empowers all students. Our year-long course question is: How can robust history-social science instruction support our students to connect their lives to the past, develop as critical thinkers about past, present, and future challenges, and take actions towards a more just and democratic world? This semester in particular aims to deepen pre-service teachers' understanding of the range of ways scholars have conceptualized U.S. history, world history, economics and civics.

EDUC 221 Curriculum Development and Design 3 Units
Curriculum Development and Design’s central challenge is to create curriculum that expresses your philosophy and knowledge of curriculum and teaching. Using the practical and conceptual tools that you have learned in your coursework and your experience in the field, you will design a unit for your students. The unit will teach significant conceptual understandings and skills while supporting students’ academic language development as well as other needs and interests. We will draw on Wiggins and McTighe’s model of “backward design” to guide us through this process.

EDUC 224 Introduction to Block-Based Programming for Teachers 2 Units
Terms offered: Prior to 2007
This course is designed to introduce future Computer Science teachers to fundamental CS concepts through block-based programming. It will cover abstraction and decomposition and how these processes allow problems to be made simpler and solved algorithmically. It will also introduce teachers to the concepts of variables, loops, conditionals, functions and arrays.
This course will focus on teaching computer science in ways that build on students’ intuitive ideas.

EDUC 224A Mathematical Thinking and Problem Solving 3 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2021, Fall 2019, Fall 2017
This course explores contemporary research on mathematical cognition, with a particular emphasis on "higher order thinking skills" and mathematical problem solving. We discuss various frameworks for characterizing mathematical behavior and various methodologies for examining it. As an "action oriented" course in the EMST curricular sequence, this course includes a major course project. In their project, students engage in research incorporating the main ideas studied in the course.

EDUC 225 Shaping Education Policy: An Introductory Course for Aspiring Teachers, Researchers, and Policymakers 3 Units
Terms offered: Spring 2023, Spring 2021
Understanding education policy is important to improve U.S. public schools. Students have opportunities to read about and analyze the design and implementation of policy, as well as have interactions with individuals who make and influence federal, state and local educational policy. One aim of this course is to support aspiring teachers, researchers, and policymakers to develop a knowledge base about key policies that have informed (and continue to inform) the outcomes of K-12 public schools.

Secondary STEM Methods:

EDUC 226 Constructive Epistemology 3 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2012, Fall 2010, Fall 2008
Many approaches to education take the knowledge to be taught as fixed, and the manipulable objects to be things like methods. By focusing on knowledge per se: what is it; how is it organized and encoded in humans, we are led to questions about what should be taught, based on principles of learnability, etc., rather than just "effective methods." This tactic is valuable in view of the radical changes information technology may have on what we need to teach and what general areas are teachable.

Secondary STEM Methods:

EDUC 226A Secondary STEM Methods 3 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2023, Fall 2022, Fall 2021
This course is designed to promote effective teaching methods for science and mathematics classrooms, including strategies for lesson planning, assessment, and English language learner support. The course supports student teachers of secondary science and mathematics in undertaking an inquiry project on their own teaching practice and earning a credential for teaching in California secondary schools.

EDUC 241B Language Socialization 3 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2014, Fall 2013, Fall 2012
Throughout the lifespan we are socialized through language to become competent participants and members of various groups and communities, including schooling institutions. For the past 20 years, this theory and method for analyzing human development has made important contribution to our understanding of how we learn to become competent members of community, how we learn through language, and how we are socialized into language. This course will provide opportunities to overview the theoretical cornerstones of language socialization as a field of study, as well as review current studies and chart future research trajectories. Course participants are expected to collect and analyze audio/video data from any educational and other learning context where language socialization might be taking place.

EDUC 241C Narrative across Learning Contexts 3 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2021, Fall 2016, Fall 2012
The study of narrative has solidified into an important body of literature that is of particular relevance to educators. Across learning contexts, narrative is a ubiquitous literacy tool, and as such, it underlies many learning activities. We tell narratives for their potency to explain, rationalize, and delineate past, present, and possible experience. This narrative act is a collaborative undertaking, co-told and designed with the audience's input, addressing an audience's present and future concerns. Narrative can thus potentially create shared understandings and community among those participating in narrative activity, yet narratives can become sites for rejection and contestation. Narrative is also a socializing tool. The course will also address methodological approaches to the study of narrative that are relevant to the field of education. Students enrolled in this course are expected to collect narrative samples from naturally occurring interactions (video and audiorecorded conversation, classroom interaction), written narrative texts, or other.

EDUC 257 Theoretical Foundations for the Cultural Study of Sport in Education 3 Units
The cultural study of sport examines the ways in which institutionalized physical activity embodies and reflects social meanings and identities. The social practice of sport provides a space in which dominant discourses of race, gender, and social class are reproduced and resisted. As these physical activities become institutionalized, commercialized, and embedded within educational institutions themselves, individuals must navigate a nuanced and often conflicted terrain in their respective participation and performance. This course, then, examines the role of sport in society broadly and the relationship of sport and education more specifically. The curriculum reviews the writing and research on sport and education from a sociological, psychological, and philosophical perspective, with a particular focus on the constructed divide of mind and body, as manifested in the institutional conflicts between school and sport.

EDUC 262G Research on the Education of Teachers 3 Units
Terms offered: Spring 2016, Spring 2015, Spring 2013
The course focuses on research on the education of prospective and practicing teachers, and on the institutional, organizational and policy contexts in which that research has been pursued. It is designed for students who are interested in doing research in this field or in becoming teacher educators, and is built on several organizing questions. What is the work (and workplace) for which teachers are being prepared? What is the occupational conception of teaching that underpins practice, policy, and research? What is the significance of teacher education's fluctuating fortunes and shifting institutional forms? What is the field's capacity for research on teacher education? By comparison with research on teaching and learning, research on the education of teachers has been under-developed both conceptually and methodologically. Throughout the course, we will be judging the accomplishments and limitations of this field of practice and study, and locating opportunities for future research and development. EDUC C265C Research Advances in Race, Diversity, and Educational Policy 3 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2020, Fall 2019, Fall 2018
This introductory graduate seminar will engage the research literature on race, diversity, and educational policy to provide a foundation for examining contemporary issues in American public schooling. We will examine research on race, culture, and learning alongside more policy driven research on school structures, governance, finance, politics, and policy. In doing so, we will blend micro level examinations of teaching and learning with macro level considerations of politics and policy.

EDUC 273B Research Group on Policy Implementation 3 Units
Terms offered: Spring 2016, Fall 2015, Spring 2015
This year-long research and writing group is intended for graduate students who plan to specialize in studying educational policy implementation. In the course, we will investigate what happens from the time a policy is enacted until the policy is actually implemented in classrooms, schools, and districts. The centerpiece of the research group is reviewing and providing feedback to members on their works-in-progress related to policy implementation. The goal is to strengthen participants’ preparation for research in this area through a combination of consultation and feedback on specific problems related to conceptualizing and enacting high quality research, including but not limited to the formulation of research questions, theory development, research design, data collection, analysis, writing, and publication. We will supplement this activity by reading research together to help build a shared understanding of the different theoretical perspectives that can potentially inform the study of policy implementation, including institutional theory, social movements analysis, conflict perspectives, and organizational learning theory.

EDUC 273C Democratic Decision Making 3 Units
Terms offered: Spring 2014, Spring 2012
This course is the first in three in a series entitled Democratic Decision-Making. Together, the courses examine decision-making through different lenses, beginning with this summer’s exploration of the role of democracy in discussions on public education. Romantic notions tying education and democracy have been around since this nation’s founding. Wealthy and intellectual, the framers of the Constitution envisioned the torch-bearers of their new democracy to be “well-educated men” able to translate the vision set forth by the time’s great thinkers (or at least those who were recognized as such - White, well-to-do men like Thomas Paine and John Locke).

EDUC 276A Introduction to Program Evaluation 3 Units
This course provides an introduction to the field of program evaluation ("programs" might be curriculum innovations, school reorganizations, teacher training reforms, instructional methods innovations, funding programs, or programs in the health or welfare areas). It will give an overview of issues of concern to practicing evaluators, researchers, program managers, and academics interested in field-based research. Those taking the course will be introduced to the history of the field, the basic concepts and intellectual disputes, the major methodological issues, and to some common "models" of how an evaluation ought to be conducted. Based on the understandings of the topics and issues discussed in this course, participants will be asked to conceptualize and design an evaluation in their area of personal and/or professional interests. The purpose of this exercise is for participants to develop skills for framing evaluation questions, designing, and describing an evaluation plan.

EDUC 279B Resource Management 2 3 Units
Terms offered: Spring 2016, Summer 2013 8 Week Session, Summer 2012 8 Week Session
In general, the purpose of this course is to prepare a new generation of superintendents. This course will expand on the foundation laid in the Budgeting 1 class, which serves as a "bootcamp" for fundamental management skills and concepts used in business and nonprofit organizations. The topics covered will be more focused on developing knowledge and skills needed by superintendents and educational leaders in the present.

Prerequisites: 279A or consent of instructor

EDUC 280A Proseminar: Sociocultural Critique of Education 3 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2023, Spring 2023, Fall 2021
These interdisciplinary seminars address a series of questions. In what ways can philosophical, sociological, anthropological, historical, and psychological forms of inquiry be brought together to bear on the analysis of learning, on schooling, and on education more generally? What do we mean by critical and interpretive theories, and what are their relations with social practice? How can education come to constitute itself otherwise than in its current form?

EDUC 280C Research Apprenticeship and Qualitative Methodology Seminar I 3 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2017, Fall 2016, Fall 2015
The emphasis in this course is on the practice of research. Each student, ordinarily in the second year of graduate study, develops a research project with a faculty mentor and carries it out under direction. At the same time, students work together in this seminar. Short written assignments during the first eight weeks result in a research proposal to be carried out by the end of the semester. Students spend about 50 hours on the field research.

Prerequisites: 280A or consent of instructor
EDUC 280D Research Apprenticeship and Qualitative Methodology Seminar II 3 Units
Terms offered: Spring 2017, Spring 2016, Spring 2015
This is the second in a sequence of courses on the practice of research. In the first semester students work with faculty mentors and in the seminar to carry out a field research project. Continuing both apprenticeship and seminar, this semester is devoted to analyzing the field materials and preparing a paper on the research.

EDUC 281 Critical Race Theory, Education, & Society 3 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2023
This graduate level course is designed to introduce students to the area of Critical Race Theory (CRT) and its applications in educational settings and broader study of society. It engages readings that launched the U.S.-based movement of CRT, which came primarily from legal studies, and will link these developments with critical theories of race found across the disciplines and applied to education.

EDUC 282 Introduction to Disciplined Inquiry 3 Units
How educational researchers ask questions, marshal evidence, and draw conclusions varies widely. This variance is due, in part, to researchers' disciplinary backgrounds, interests, and positionalities, as well as the nature of the phenomena and people being studied. This course builds students' fluency with the basic theoretical and methodological considerations that inform the educational research process.

EDUC 283B Historical Perspectives on American Education 3 Units
Terms offered: Spring 2020, Spring 2017, Spring 2016
Public schooling today reflects a long evolution, producing an institution that embodies social inequalities as well as democratic aspirations. Politicians, teachers, school reformers, and others interested in education invoke elements of this history to justify their efforts. This course examines the relationship of the changing goals, organization, and practices of American schools to broader social, economic, political, and intellectual developments.

EDUC 283D Popular Education 3 Units
Terms offered: Spring 2010, Spring 2009, Spring 2008
The empowerment of adults through democratically structured cooperative study and action directed toward achieving more just and peaceful societies within a life-sustaining global environment. The historical development of theory and practice as well as the current state of this major international educational movement and its associated research model—participatory research—will be examined using case studies and theoretical works. Our principal method will be dialogue.

EDUC 283F Urban Education 3 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2019, Fall 2018, Fall 2017
This course will explore the relationship between macroeconomic and political trends and public education in inner city schools. The impact of these larger societal phenomena upon drop-out rates, school climate, teacher morale, and academic achievement will be investigated through a combination of reading and field research in Oakland and Berkeley schools. An examination and evaluation of current proposals for reform of urban schools will also be included.

EDUC 284A Philosophy of Education 3 Units
Terms offered: Fall 2009, Fall 2005, Fall 2004
Philosophical analysis applied to current educational problems and key concepts.
EDUC 285 Globalization and International Education 3 Units
Terms offered: Spring 2015, Fall 2012, Spring 2009
What is globalization? What are the implications of living in a "global world" for educational systems? In this course, we explore these questions by first examining various theoretical perspectives on globalization. We will then discuss several major developments associated with globalization that are affecting different levels of education (from primary to university) including the rise in accountability and testing, skills for the "knowledge" economy, and immigration. We will consider the role of international organizations such as the World Bank and the United Nations in shaping international policy and programs. We will also examine the role that the state, local communities, and non-governmental agencies play in providing and improving the quality of education. In the final part of the course, we examine topics including language policy, technology, and strategies to combat educational inequality. To explore these topics, we will read and discuss case studies from Asia, Africa, Latin America, and the United States to provide concrete examples of how global forces are changing the context and content of education internationally.

EDUC 293 Distributed Leadership in Multilayered Organizations 3 Units
Terms offered: Spring 2022
How do we lead a change from current traditional practice to distributed leadership and collaborative practice? As we consider proposed possible changes to the organization, we will incorporate best practices in change management, which will lead us to the understanding that effective, meaningful change at an organizational level cannot be accomplished and sustained by individuals. Rather, the change effort itself must be distributive and collaborative.

EDUC 297 Design Principles for Disenfranchised Communities 3 Units
Terms offered: Prior to 2007
Public school systems are organized not by best practice, but by historical evolution. In this course, we ask a simple question, "What if we instead designed school systems with the needs of students furthest from opportunity?" We begin by charting the existing landscape within complex school systems. Through our inquiry, we identify organizational factors that can be leveraged to reshape these existing systems to produce student outcomes that are in line with students' full potential.

Terms offered: Not yet offered
Crisis is a fixed condition of contemporary organizational life (Roitman, 2014) and growing in magnitude, frequency and complexity (Helsloot, Boin, Jacobs, & Comfort, 2012). For public system leaders in education and other public sectors anticipating crisis is not a question of if but of when, what and how. As stewards of the public good, educational system leaders must be ready and willing to serve their communities in and through crisis. This course will critically examine a public education leader’s role in crisis situations, from prevention through response and recovery.
